quake fault — possibly-creating a safety valve for strain that could lead to a quake.

Dr. Chi-yu King of the Earthquake Mechanism Laboratory said the movement, called a "creep," was slightly more than one third of an inch. It was the largest creep ever recorded, he added.

King said in an interview here that the movement, which occurred during a 29-hour period July 17-18, was not disclosed sooner because measurement data had to be checked.

The scientist said he and his colleagues have tentatively concluded the creep "probably relieved significant amounts of strain" along the Hayward-Chlaveras fault near Hollister, about 90 miles south of San Francisco.

King said the movement may be relieving strain along the main San Andrews fault and possibly providing safety valves for stresses developing where the main fault cuts through San Francisco.

Some earthquake experts have warned that the San Andreas fault is due for one of its periodic movements similar to the one that caused the 1906

BRIGHTON, England (CP) Former prime 'minister Harold-Wilson vowed today to fight Britain's projected entry into the European Common Market on present terms every inch of the way. He demanded total backing of all labor MPs in that fight.

"We have no room for passengers or faint hearts," he told cheering delegates at the party's annual convention. "There is not one Labor member of Parliament who could have been elected by his own efforts."

Wilson was plainly warning Deputy Leader Roy Jenkins and a band of followers who have signalled their intention of voting with Prime Minister Heath's Conservative govern-ment when Parliament makes its choice on the issue Oct. 28.

Doctor Statistics Prove Confusing

It's difficult to say whether B.C. has a shoriage or a surplus of doctors, Dr. W. J. Corbett, outgoing president of the B.C. Medical Association, said Monday,

Commenting on a series of Times reports last week which revealed that, because of lack of facilities and funds, the University of British Columbia's medical school is forced every year to turn down nine out of every 10 candidates. Corbett said this is "a sad fact of life."

But he added that "another can of worms is what kind of doctors make up the province's total.

He said B.C. has a ratio of one doctor to every 750 resident, which is better than the national average of one to §25, and below the ideal ratio of one to 600 set out by the World Health Organization.

However, the B.C. ratio may be misleading because "a to of semi-retired doctors neve come here to put their feet on their flesk and just work part time."

He said no one knows either how many primary care doctors there are in relation to specialists.

tors there are in relation to specialists.

"There is an unequal distribution of doctors, Like any-body else doctors prefer to live in Victoria and Vancouver and not in Pumphandle Junction." he said.

"We would be happy to co-operate with the governmentin any way to study this situation."

Corpett said the SCMA has no authority to get involved in DBC's medical school problems but it has supported the dean in his bid to get more funds from the provincial government.

One-Man Election

returned to office in South Vietnam, amid widespread doubts as to the accuracy of the balloting and the honesty of the campaign. Without any opposition after Vice-President Ky had been disqualified from running, President Thieu had said that he would resign if he did not get more than 50 per cent of the vote - a gesture he said indicated the rule of democracy. More than 87 per cent of the voters turned out, and more than 90 per cent of them voted for Thieu.

The high percentage, even with only one man running, has raised charges among Ky's friends that the election was rigged. United States officials are trying to remainoutside this aspect of the controversy, but anti-Thieu forces note that the many provincial chiefs whom Thieu appointed apparently came through with the ballots he or-

For instance, only two days before the election the South Vietnamese Supreme Court suggested that Thieu fire three provincial chiefs on the grounds that they had tampered with the ballots in the legislative elections last August 29. Thieu did not dismiss them. The returns this weekend in their three provinces gave Thieu 94.2, 99.3 and 99.6 per cent of the vote respectively.

With so much suspicion at home

DRESIDENT THIEU HAS BEEN, and abroad it can hardly be said that the election has done any service to democracy, although President Thieu announced it as "a very good achievement." The net effect can hold little benefit for the South's war situation - still less for Americans trapped in it. Disillusioned South Vietnamese voters may be less inclined to reject Communist overtures, and the South's urge to fight may be similarly diminished. President Thieu's election, therefore, could be a step toward the collapse of the Vietnam war into a peacetime chaos that

> Certainly there is little now to cause the United States to delay its timetable for withdrawal. The real losers appear to be the ordinary people of the country, laboring to use a foreign political system to which they have not yet become accustomed, burdened with a traditional self-seeking approach to politics which results in corruption at all levels, and facing the heavy costs, in money, effort and lives, of a war which was never the result of a welling of demand from the grass

Society has the right to protect itself against threats to its orderly existence. But use of law which suspends civil rights should require prior proof, first that a genuine emergency exists, and secondly, that the extreme measure is the correct weapon to use.

The rights of the individual in his dealings with the state have taken so many centuries to win that they should not be suspended, even temporarily, unless there is an obvious danger to the life of the state. Such rights are under constant threat in many parts of the world each day. Nations that have

The communique is cited as proof that the Brezhnev doctrine of limited sovereignty stops short at the Yugoslav border.

Part of the final press release reads that the policies of the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia derive from "the identity of their basic social systems, and the closeness of their approach to many international problems." The give-away word is 'many." To say that the two countries agree on "many international problems" is an oblique way of saying that they disagree on some, too.

THE DEPARTURE OF JOSEF Cardinal Mindszenty from Hungary through an agreement between the Vatican and the Hungarian Communist state, may be viewed as the end of a humiliating episode for a Hungarian patriot. Overseeing the Church's eastern policy is an office in the Vatican devoted generally to communication between the Church and nonbelievers.

There is, of course, no basic reason why the Vatican should not enter into practical accords with regimes which officially espouse atheism. The present search for better relations is, to put matters in historical context, a further example of East-West detente. What happens in any part of our city affects us all yet this concern is not reflected by our decentralized municipal political structure. Our representatives have little influence over events in other arts of the city even though they may be of very real concern to us. It is time for a change!

The answer, as I see it, is either a federation of municipalities or a total union of the municipal councils into a single city council. Examples of both of these can be found elsewhere in Europe and Scandinavia as well as closer to home. Though I prefer the latter alternative, they both serve the purpose of giving our elected representatives a voice in whatever affects us as citizens of Greater Victoria.

I find myself appalled by the very large, advertisement in your paper of Sept. 29 regarding the "Job Opportunities Program" for welfare recipients. It makes me wonder if the government is thinking more about acquiring votes for the next election than about the promotion of a healthy philosophy for the people - particularly the young.

Encouraging employers to create new jobs just for those on social assistance is discriminating against those unemployed who have pride in not being a burden to the taxpayer. It cannot help but entice the young to leave home to be eligible for welfare and thus have a fair chance

Benefits of Cadet Training

The Committee on Youth Report re- forces. The cadet organizations retain cently publicized in the press would apto have ramifications over and above the actual recommendations con-

Specifically I refer to the particular recommendation to withdraw federal government support from the army, navy and air cadet organization.

As a federally sponsored study, the report of course received widespread coverage, both because of the great interest in current youth problems and activities and also due to the many contentious suggestions made.

Any such study of course is open to misinterpretation by a large number persons, who do not either understand the actual basis of such a report, or see it as future government policy. In addice the individuals on the com mittee are given the publicity that they received, as well as their views, certain segments of Canadian youth would tend to agree with the opinions expressed, with the overall result that such a disciplined organziation becomes, in many minds, unacceptable, unpopular and "not the tining to do.'

Another step has thus been taken by many of the traditions which have been eliminated from the regular and reserve forces. The main feature of this incipient and well planned direction would appear that a youth organization offering good training and discipline and a means by which to keep youth occupied in well worthwhile endeavours, is slowly but surely being undermined.

The morale of the cadet organization cannot help but be affected by such a report, the publicity it receives and the lack of any disassociation by government leaders with the views in question expressed.

The above conclusions drawn are not, I believe, unfounded.

Canadians who are interested in the future of their country and its youth cannot help but he deeply concerned by such 'leadership" as is being set by the present federal government

It appears to this parent that we have a need for more, not less, organizations such as the cadets, which produce a respect for authority and discipline, that offer a real challenge tomour youth, that enable them to partake in interesting and healthy activities and training, and that help sustain the country's strength and character. - "A Concerned Non-ser-

Scientist Ever By ROBERT REINHOLD

The Greatest

If ever there was a mad sci--entist, it was Isaac Newton.

Scarcely out of college, this quarrelsome, vengeful, pompous yet brilliant scientist had already invented the calculus, made major advances in optics and laid the groundwork for the laws of dynamics and universal gravitation that

Yet later, at the height of his creative powers, he gave up science to run the mint in London, where he spent the rest of his life chasing coun-terfeiters and dabbling in alchemy and mysticism. He died in 1727 at age 84, apparently a virgin.

These strange contradictions are partly at the root today of a major international revival in the study of the works and enigmatic personality of the man who revolu-tionized science by formulat-ing a single mathematical law motion of objects on earth.

The core of this system is Newton's law of universal gravitation. This holds that there exists between any two bodies an attraction that varies inversely with the square of the distance between them and directly with the product of their masses. Sometimes Computers Can Help

One of the horrors of this century is that the problems of humanity are so large that they turn people into statis-

Everyone hates computers. There's something sinister about them; they know things they don't need to know. They pry. But in the field of social assistance the computer is producing important changes.

In the 1960's, it was conventional wisdom that all welfare programs should be universal—that any systems of public assistance should apply to everyone regardless of their need.

The first argument used to support this point of view was that any selective program based on individual need would have to define it and that such definition was difficult.

There were serious human objec-ions to any methods of defining means tests" or "needs tests".

People who were in need would have to disclose their assets and incomes so the state could decide whether or not they qualified. This was degrading. So it seemed simpler to use universal pro-

The second argument for the univer-sal plans was that the mechanical problem of collecting information, sorting it, By JOHN NICHOL and applying it, was so slow and costly that there was really no saving in being selective. It was cheaper and simpler to pay everyone the baby bonus, for in-stance, than to become involved in pinpointing those who really needed it and those who did not.

In the 1960's, it seemed that Cana da's economic boom would go on forev-er. The guestion of whether or not the nation could afford universal welfare seemed secondary to the necessity of

In 1965, the new government inherited a liquidity crisis caused in part by the demands of these open-ended universal programs (a liquidity crisis is eco-nomic jargon used to describe the stud-ation in which there is not enough money to pay the bills). The question of whether or not the nation could afford such programs was no longer academic.

Even worse, in spite of the seemingly insatiable demands on the public treasury, the poverty gap in Canada did not close. Inflation was gnawing at the buying power of the dollar, and the poor were the handest bit. people were the hardest hit.

As long as we could afford universal

But now, because of the computer, some selectivity is on the way. It now is possible with computerized statistical methods (horrible as that sounds) to determine who needs what. It is also possible to calculate the cost of such programs programs.

This will probably not eliminate the "means" or "needs" tests completely, but it should take out some of the sting. Thus the computer is filling the old argument about the gigantic mechanical and human problems involved in setting up selective programs.

If money is provided to people who don't need it, there won't be as much for those who do. This hardly seems revolutionary. It is not an argument for tax cuts or a reduction in total amount of public assistance. It is an argument for actual, rather than theoretical, re-

There are 130 Russians with diplomatic status serving at the USSR mission to the United Nations in New York whose movements are unrestricted, plus 160 who serve as international civil servants within the U.N. secretariat. All have diplomatic immunity from prosecution under U.S. laws.

KGB DIRECTED

Soviet civilian espionage abroad is directed by the KGB secret police, in Moscow. Its chief is Yuri Andronov, a close political ally of Soviet Communist party leader. Leonid Brezhnev, who appointed Andropov to his post in May, 1867.

in May, 1967.

In each Soviet embissy in a non-Communist country, according to anecialists here, there is a "resident." or spy-master, whose nower often exceeds that of the ambassador. His cover may range from that of a political counsellor to that of a chauffeur but more than half the total embassy staff is said to come under his authority. In addition, the resident controls the "illegals," or Soviet agents working under deen cover without diplomatic immunity. In Communist countries, experts say, the KG Behlef of

In Communist countries, experts say, the KG Behief officer is known as the "adviser." His main task is to advise and co-ordinate collection activities with the local staterun Communist Intelligence networks.

GROWN RAPIDLY

Since the Second World War Soviet intelligence operations through embassies abroad have grown rapidly — and have occasionally come to light.

The recent defection of a Soviet intelligence official in Britain is thought here to have accelerated Britain's decision to expel the suspected Soviet spies in the country. Since the Second World War, Britain has been a prime target of Soviet activity, informants here say.

"The Russians don't want the British in the Common Market" one source said. "The British have strong scientific and technological development and they exchange information with the U.S. This makes them a prime target." Intelligence sources here say that the KGB concentrates its activities abroad not geographically but on "targets of opportunity." The United States, they say, remains the sources and the same statements of the common statements.

geographically but on "targets of opportunity." The United States, they say, remains the prime target and efforts are made to recruit persons—who may eventually return to, or who may visit, the United States. This includes American toumists, students, scientists and non-Americans who have access into the United States.

TRUSTEES URGED TO PROMOTE WOMEN

British Columbia school trustees were urged Monday to hire more women for school principal posts.

The suggestion was made by Education Minister Donald Brothers who said: "I know that there are many highly competent women teachers in the school system and I recom mend to the boards in the province that they give comsideration to appointing more of them as principals of schools."

He also called on women teachers to apply for jobs as district superintendents. There are 57 of these positions in B.C., he said, and all are held by men.

Brothers noted that more than half of B.C.'s 23,000 teachers are women:

Pontiac on Accident Prevention A car can not, by itself, prevent accidents. But every '72 Pontiac has features designed to help prevent some kinds of accidents from happening. If you must pull over to the shoulder of a road at night, the four-way hazard warning flasher will alert other drivers that you are stopped. Your direction signal control has a lane change feature. And when you signal for an upcoming turn, the front side marker lamps will flash with the direction signal. Among Pontiac's many other accident prevention features are a dual mastercylinder brake system with warning lamp, selfadjusting brakes, dual action safety hood latches, wide-view inside mirror and backup lamps. But accidents can best be prevented by safer driving on everybody's part. Always drive carefully, defensively; and soberly. And have your car serviced and tuned regularly.

Before you look at their new ones, look at their old ones.

Now that new car time is upon us, gosh knows, we hate to be the ones to spoil all the fun.

After all, what's more exciting than taking the family down to see the shiny new models or to hear the fasttalking salesmen, or maybe even to pick up a free balloon?

It's just that during all that hoopla and razzledazzle, you may not want to pick up one of those exciting new-ears.

For the unpleasant lact of the matter is that junk-

Which is why we suggest a trip to the junkyard before you decide to put a new car in your own yard. And why we suggest that that new car be a Volks:

For while we can't promise you how long one will last, we can tell you that over 13 million Volkswagens are still on the road.

And when one drops out, even then it's not always destined to be dropped in a pile. For old Volkswagens have a habit of becoming other things: Like new dune

Powell Hits Pair Out In 'Our Kind of Ball'

Nobody in Vancouver is feeling sorry for the Canucks this fall - what with the great pre-season National Hockey League camp they've been having but that may be a mistake. Someone should, because they still haven't got what they've been searching for since last spring.

Although confidence abounds, as it usually does in the fall, there is much to do. And a record of only one defeat in nine exhibition games doesn't alter the facts. These games, four wins, and four ties, and a loss only to Chicago, don't'

General manager Bud Potle wasn't alluding to this preceneral manager bud Folle wash? and any of Los Angeles, kings here, he commented. "I wish the points were on the board." He knew it would get tougher by the week's end. The Canucks open against Toronto Friday."

Canucks open against Toronto Friday."

But better than last year? Both Poile and coach Hal Laycoe think so. The reason? Basically, the club is one NHL year older, should benefit from that experience, and has a few notable additions.

A big one at 6'2" and 185 pounds is rookie Jocelyn Guevremont, former captain of the junior Montreal Canadiens. "It's unfortunate he couldn't have played here," said Poile, "because he is good. And he can move that puck around—as good as anyone." around - as good as anyone.'

"If there is one phase of the game where we definitely have improved." Poile added, "I would say that Hal (Laycoe) has done a good job in getting the defencemen to move the puck up the ice. We do it as well as any team."

What then might be the problem?, a listener inquired. "It's when the other club gets control in our end. We can't seem to do much about it," he said. "And that's where Otherwise, Poile appeared reasonably happy, said that "rookle Bobby Lalonde (the five-foot-five centre) will make our team." and "yes, we have been discussing a trade with

That trade talk includes Charlie Hodge, the Canucks' No. 1 goalkeeper of last year, who declined to come to terms this season because he couldn't have a no-cut contract.

And the Kings need a goalkeeper — "they didn't appear too strong in goal, did they?" said Poile, that deal may be consumated by the time this appears in print.

Besides, the Canucks may get some help they've been needing. As late as last spring, they were wanting a good left winger, and a right winger, or as Polle said at the draft meet-

Our top priority is two wingers, one for each side good experienced National Leaguers.

Those priorities haven't changed, which is one excellent reason the Los Angeles-deal for Hodge looms as so important, from a Canuck outlook. They can't help but feel they are dealing from strength—three goalies; and the Kings just may have what they want up front.

Meanwhile, Layeoe said that "Mike Corrigan had a good camp, Ted Taylor has been with us from the start, Guevremont has been everything we expected, and we missed Lalonde more than we realized we would, when he was

"I would say his stock went up with his absence."
Laycoe also stressed that Dale Tallon was a vastly improved player over his rookie season of last year. "He had a wonderful training camp, but he tailed off a bit when we played in Vancouver — I think he was just trying too hard to

On Saturday, Victorians got a good look at what Laycoe meant. Tallon had to be one of the best Canucks on the ice, even if the game was loosely played; and besides, he scored two goals.

Poile was suitably impressed, and offered the expert opinion "he should be right behind Bobby Orr in scoring this

But lest anyone get carried away with hopes of instant success, Laycoe cautioned:

Right now we are worse off than any time since training p started: He explained that defenceman Garry Doak would be out of action for five weeks because of a broken lost-Orberd Kurtenback had the flu, Laloude could only be used sparingly because of his injuries. Jim Hargreaves is on crutches, and Bobby Schmautz had been slowed down because of prince buty. se of minor burts.

And besides, the Canucks still haven't got what Poile said

Or until Los Angeles makes a decision on Hodge. On second thought, make that read "if Hodge makes a decision on Los Angeles." The little 38-year-old veteran was in goal for 15 of Vancouver's 24 victories last year, also 5 ties, in 35 games, was due in town today to meet with Los Angeles officials. And although he has said he is not interested in playing for any other teams, the simple fact that he has agreed to talks with the Kings, may imply that he may change his mind, if the Kings can convince him that it would be in the best interests to do so. Certainly, they can use him.

"It's up to Hodge," said one Los Angeles official.
For the Canucks, it has been described as a "super-deal.

Most professional athletes realize that injuries can occur if a player is not in condition. Teams expect players to be in shape when camp opens.

During the summer, getting in shape meant water ski-ing, tennis, swimming and in general having fun—when I wasn't making personal ap-pearances or on the ice at the sports camp. The hockey sea-son is long enough without going all out in the summer.

Kids need to follow the pros and be ready for that first hockey outing. Of course, youngsters don't have to worry about being in physical shape or being overweight. But the muscles need to be built up, the wrists strengthened and the body prepared the physical exertion of a

One of the best ways is to do about 15 minutes of exercises a day — sit-ups, push-ups, running and arm exercises. Lifting weights also can help — light weights that develop muscles when used re-

In 1778 Captain Cook sailed into Nootka Sound.

And the world knew about British Columbia.

There's no doubt in our minds that the first words uttered by captain and crew alike must have been "this is God's country".

On that day if one of the crew had thrown some debris overboard it would have been a simple matter to correct.

Today British Columbia has 2,250,000 residents and millions of annual visitors. Especially in this Centennial Year. It has become a physical impossibility for your government to control pollution in the entire 366,255 square miles of the province.

The Government of the Province of British Columbia is taking the lead with pollution control but we need your help. Citizen and Visitor alike.

British Columbia is beautiful. Help your Government keep it that way.

THUNDER BAY — Part of an aspiring political leader's lot, it seems, is to appear in various garbs and headwear on his campaign trail. Ontario NDP Leader Stephes Lewis is no exception to this custom as he posed for photographers in an Indian headdress during a trip to Thunder Bay (picture below). Ontario goes to the polls on Oct. 21. Whether his headgear caper will help Lewis remains to be seen.

Fischer Plays Today

BUENOS AIRES (AP) Bobby Fischer of the United States will try to make it two wins in a row today when he meets Tigran Petrosian again in their semi-final tournament in the world's chess cham

Fischer, 28, defeated Petrosian of the Soviet Union last Thursday in the first game of their 12-game match that will determine who will challenge the world's title holder, Boris Spassky, also of the Soviet Union.

The victory was the 20th in row for Fischer, who scored in 40 moves. Chess experts here favor the aggressive Fixcher to win the match against Petrosian, 42, a former world champion.

Fisher, at the pre-game drawing, drew the white for the first encounter and thus had the advantage of the first move. Petrosian will have white for today's second game in the San Martin Theatre.

Nearly 1,000 people packed game and an equal number crowded into the lobby and followed the progress of the

Hair Spray Fixes Plumes

By HILDA BEASTALL

By HILDA BEASTALL

A little of something for everyone loday. First, the pampas plumes causing so much consternation as to when they should be cut. In brief: Just as the plumes of flowers are freed from the green sheaths in which they have been growing all summer. This past week I have seen plumes in all stages of development. Those in early locations of sunshine and steady moderate temperatures have been in full plumage for two weeks. These will not be good for drying as indoor decoration, since the seed will drop and scatter within a few days. Being fluffy, this becomes a house-wife's nightmare. You find it everywhere!

Other plumes have emerged from their green sheaths during the week and could have been removed at the weekend. However, it is best to take them on a dry day, around noon, or they will mould indoors unless a moving current of air passes through the plumes.

If your plumes are only just coming out of their covers.

If your plumes are only just coming out of their covers, give them a day or two to shake free. The tiny flowers must be well developed, but not at the stage of attempted seed setting. You will find pampas listed under Cortaderia for the tail kinds and Selloana pumila for dwarfer varieties. Plumes will be either creamy white, pale pinkish, or a purplish tinge.

Cut them with sharp secateurs, the length you want. One local recommendation has been to spray the plumes with a hair-setting preparation which will fix the flowers regardless of the exact stage at which they were cut.

The usual care must be taken not to get the spray in the Now for fall treatment of fleshy rooted summer flowers. Some are not winter hardy in our wet, rather heavy Island

YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

During my long life as a physician, I have seen scores of pa-tients whom my old-professor taught me to call schizoid — they were something like people who had schizophrenia (-old means "like".) but they were sane, and never delusional. They were able to handle a responsible for for many years, and even to win recognition in their field. They tend to be shy, apparently unfriendly, detached, day-dreaming, and what I call "fouch-me-

As I have said here before, a typically schizoid woman can be recognized in a moment in any large institution where there are many secretaries. Usually, the girls will be laughing and a falking with one another—but not so with the schizoid girl. If she gets into an elevator, she keeps her eyes lowered; she does not seem to see that Iriends are near; she does not show any sign of recognition, and if spoken to, she may answer in a monosyllatic with only a sky momentary clane. If someone brushes ble with only a shy momentary glance. If someone brushes against her she may recoil as if touched by a hot iron.

If a man tried to make friends with such a girl, she will keep repulsing him again and again, often in a prudish way; she may appear distressed just because he is near. If he should become too affectionate, she will become extremely distressed and even offended. Naturally, such a girl rarely will go out with boys and may never have a beau. If an occasional one marries, she is likely to be frigid and to hate sexual intercourse.

I have examined many a schizoid woman in my office, and in a few cases I have been amazed to find that even after perhaps 20 years of marriage, she was a virgin. Sometimes schizoid persons have a greasy, coarse type of skin with ar unpleasant odor. The woman may have long, thin arms and legs, with "tooth-pick" ankies. On cold days she may get bluish and mottled legs and feet, and her pulse may tend to-race.

Often such a woman will have small, tender breasts, with "shotty" glandular areas, and perhaps a rather infantile uterus. On occasion, one breast may be larger than the other. An attempt to examine her pelvic may cause the woman much mental distress, and she may become extremely tense. She may cry out with fear and pain as I examine her pelvis, and she will try to pais my hand away. Even the pressure of the culf around her arm, when I take her blood pressure, may cause her distress.

A schizoid man may flinch and object when I try to examine his prostate glags! by passing a finger up through his rectum. Teeth full of cavities may suggest that the person is extremely fearful of the dentist.

I remember well the man who taught me the untouchability of schizoids. When I was an intern, one of my assistant professors was a shy, reserved, severe-looking and somewhat alcoholic man. He rarely spoke to either the patients or to us interns: Perhaps because I was so anxious to learn from him, and to work up his cases, he became surprisingly friendly with me, and then one day, as we were walking drawn the hall and I was eagerly telling him about some new patient, I inadvertently louch his arm. Immediately he pulled away angrify, almost-as if I had hurt him.

I'll never forget one of these schizoid young women who came to the Mayo Clinic complaining of all sorts of bodily discomforts for which no physical cause could be found. She was the daughter for which no physical cause could be found. She was the daughter of a schizophrenic mother. Because I felt so sorry for her in her ot a schizophrenic mother. Because I felt so sorry for her in her obvious great loneliness, I went out of my way to be kind and try to show her how she could better adjust to life. To help her I even took her out to my home for innerhoon with my wife and my grown children. After a week, she left without saying a word of appreciation or even goodbye. A few days later I received such a sad letter from her saying how terribly sorry and ashamed she was to leave me as she did; she said she had rhuch wanted to thank me from her heart, but she just could not bring herself to say the words.

I have sometimes been able to be leave to be a sorrely and the sorrely and the

I have sometimes been able to help schizoid persons by en-couraging them to develop whatever tendencies toward being friendly that they have. I can also reassure them that they can stay sane all their lives, and are likely never to need a psychiatrist. If they can only learn to think of others and to be of service to others, they may find some happiness.

Tories Score Upset

In Liberal Riding

RICHIBUCTO, N.B. (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party, in a provincial byelec-tion upset, Monday captured the Kent seat held for nearly 19 years by Louis J. Robichaud, former Liberal premier of New Brunswick.

Shattering a voting tradition that had kept the predominantly Acadian riding Liberal since 1917, Conservative Omer-Leger, a 40-year-old St. Anthony insurance agent, upset Liberal Omer Cormier, 48, a Ste. Marie farmer, by a ma-iority of 2 M8 votes jority of 2,048 votes.

With the last of the 77 polls reported, Mr. Leger had 6,658 votes to 4,610 for Mr. Cormier, The win boosted Conservative strength in the 58-seat legislature to 33 seats and left the Liberals with 25.

It was the first test at the polls for Premier Richard Hatfield since he defeated Mr. Robichaud in the New Bruns-wick general election last Oct.

26, ending 10 years of Liberal rule in the province.

Mr. Hatfield said: "It is a strong indication of support for the government and it speaks well for the province. I am particularly pleased that such a large group of Frepch-speaking people have ex-pressed their goodwill in the government of New Bruns-wick."

LIBERAL SURPRISED

Andre F. Richard, interim. Liberal leader, said of the result; "I never expected it. I still believe the people of Kent will always vote Liberal (in future)."
Mr. Robiehaud, who left

politics last spring to become Canadian chairman of the In-ternational Joint Commission,

The byelection marked the first time 18-year-olds cast ballots in either a New Bruinswick election or byelection. Legislation lowering the voting age was passed -last spring.

A three-member, mainly rural riding, Kent is also re-presented in the legislature by Mr. Richard and Alan Gra-ham of Rexton.

ham of Rexton.

The last time the PCs won the riding was in 1912 when they elected all three members. The riding swung to the Liberals in 1917 and remained Liberal in every subsequent election until Monday.

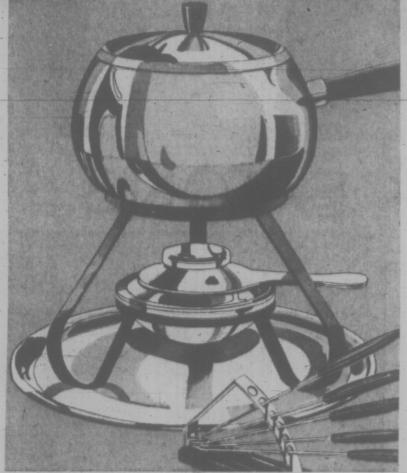

About 79 per cent of the 14,231 eligible voters in the riding voted Monday. About 82 per cent voted last fall when there were 12,559 names on voting lists:

Big Creep May Prevent Doomsday Quake

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A geophysicist says a significant movement occurred along major branch of the 600-mile San Adreas earthquake fault — possibly creating a safety valve for strain that could lead to a quake.

Dr. Chi-yu King of the Earthquake Mechanism Laboratory said the movement, called a "creep," was slightly more than one third of an inch. It was the largest creep ever recorded, he added,

King said in an interview Monday that the movement, which occurred during a 29-hour period July 17-18, was not disclosed sooner because measurement data had to be checked.

The scientist said he and his colleagues have tentatively concluded the creep "probably relieved significant amounts of strain" along the Hayward Calaveras fault near Hollister, about 90 miles south of San Francisco.

King said the movement may be relieving strain along the main San Andreas fault and possibly providing safety valves for stresses developing. where the main fault cuts through San Francisco.

Victoria Schools Lose $500,000

By BRIAN BUTTERS Times Staff

VANCOUVER - Announced reduction in educational expenditures for large B.C. school districts means the Victoria hoard will have to cut almost $500,000 from its educational budget according to Victoria School Board Chairman Allan Me-

Kinnon.

McKinnon, termed Monday's announcement by Education of Minister Donald Brothers that spending in large districts will be cuitailed by two per cent "a bit of a bombshell."

The reductions will have to come from every aspect of education, he said, including special services like classes for profundly deaf and autishe children.

The measure announced by Brothers allows school districts with budgets of over $3 million to spend 108 per cent of the "basic education program has usually "pel-ided improvisations like the autistic classes for profundly deaf and autishe classes for profundly deaf and autished by the made everywhere, especially wages.

ALONG SAN ANDREAS FAULT

Big Creep May Prevent Doomsday Quake

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) A geophysicist says a significant movement has occurred along a major branch of the 600-mile San Adreas earth quake fault — possibly creating a safely valve for strain that could lead to a quake.

Dr. Chi-yu King of the Earthquake Mechanism Laboratory said the movement, called a "creep," was slightly more than one-third of an inch. It was the largest creep ever recorded, he added.

King said in an interview here that' the movement, which occurred during a 29-hour period July 17-18, was not disclosed sooner because measurement data had to be checked

The scientist said he and his colleagues have tentatively concluded the creep "probably relieved significant amounts of strain" along the Hayward-Calaveras fault near Hollister, about 90 miles south of San Francisco.

King said the movement may be relieving strain along the main San Andreas fault and possibly providing safety valves for stresses developing where the main fault cuts through San Francisco.

Some earthquake experts have warned that the San Andreas fault is due for one of its periodic movements similar to the one that caused the 1906 San Francisco earthquake.
